

DAVID DYE
HISTORIC CONSERVATION COMMISSION

David Dye is a passionate and dedicated advocate for architecture and historic preservation. He has lived in the Village for 7 years and brings with him a Master of Architecture and Bachelor of Science from the University of Michigan. Before he retired, he was a Mechanical & Architectural Design Department at Grand Rapids Community College. Now, he is teaching there as an adjunct professor. He also works as an Architect at DFD Architecture and other local firms.

In addition to his professional pursuits, David loves to spend his free time engaging in hobbies like photography, biking, kayaking, snow skiing, and French. He often takes walks and rides bikes with his wife, Darcy, and loves to take photos of people, buildings, and landscapes. He also loves to socialize with his friends, children, and grandchildren.

David is interested in serving on the Historic Conservation Commission in order to learn about the history of the Village by studying the different buildings, and to help promote and preserve the historical buildings. He belongs to various professional organizations such as, the American Institute of Architects, West Michigan - U.S. Green Building Council, and GreenHome Institute. He is an energetic, loyal, and optimistic individual who loves to spend time walking and bicycling on the bike trails and seeing dogs in Central Park. With his unique combination of experience and passion, David is sure to be an asset to the Historic Conservation Commission.
